

PHILADELPHIA LEADERS IN LAW

A Tradition of Excellence

The Law Office of Sidkoff, Pincus & Green has taken on Philadelphia's toughest cases since 1958.

FROM LEFT TO RIGHT: Robert Davitch, Vice President; Casey Green, Partner; Gary Green, Managing Partner, President; and Larry Keller, Partner.

“When we take a case, it becomes a firm enterprise,” says attorney Gary Green, managing partner at the Law Office of Sidkoff, Pincus & Green (SPG). “Everyone at our firm knows about every case, and we all work on each of them in some capacity. That’s why we’re so selective about the cases we accept.”

An “elite, small firm of hardball trial and business attorneys,” SPG has taken on Philadelphia’s most complex and challenging cases since 1958. While their primary focus is business litigation, the team has successfully represented clients in matters ranging from antitrust lawsuits to unlawful discrimination claims. The firm has also handled hundreds of appeals in both state and federal court, advocating for a wide variety of clients in numerous areas of the law.

“We treat our cases like a game of chess,” Green says. “It doesn’t matter if it’s litigation or negotiation, we’re always strategic and competitive. We research every case extensively, looking for advantages, and we’re not afraid to press the other side to create opportunities.” When SPG accepts a case, the attorneys play to win.

High-Touch Service

SPG’s mastery of so many different areas of law gives its lawyers a tremendous advantage when business clients need them to spot both hidden gems and risks during negotiations of deals, or when taking part in due diligence for a pending deal. SPG can memorialize the terms when opportunities arise and litigate if opportunities turn into disputes. The current roster of cases focuses on battling shareholders and partners, RICO and other business torts, resolving the struggles between distributors and manufacturers, and drafting for buyouts and reorganizations. Given SPG’s wide-ranging background, clients frequently ask its trusted lawyers to act as the consigliere to the CEO and other top executives.

Dedicated to providing a truly personal client experience, SPG has gained exceptional ratings within the legal community, including top-level recognitions from Avvo, Martindale-Hubbell, and Super Lawyers®. More importantly, their clients have written countless glowing reviews about their experiences with the firm. For Green, the only thing that matters is a happy client.

“Nothing bothers me more than the idea of having a dissatisfied client,” Green says. “Win or lose, we want every client to have a strong conviction that there is no law firm that could have done a better job.”

1101 Market Street, Suite 2700
Philadelphia, PA 19107
215-574-0600
greatlawyers.com

